THINKING OUT LOUD

By H. M. L.

War veterans are doing a bit of infiltrating into peace time economy of our county. They are coming home and many of them are slipping back into their former jobs. At the bank window we see clerk that was there three years ago, and mighty glad the bank and the bank's customers are to have him back. On a truck that delivers beverages, the owner is again in the driver's seat and making his deliveries. On the police force, a man who saw plenty of fighting and lots of dead Japs in Tinnian and Saipan, is back on his beat, as glad to be home, as his fellow citizens are to have him.

Thus the story runs, as in Nevada City, so it is throughout the nation. Back, deep down in our brain processes, we think of those who went out from our community and have not returned. Those lads who lie in alien soil far overseas, the row on rows of white crosses, that mark the real and permanent loss to our nation. Every man and woman, who thinks, remembers these with a stab of pain. War costs so much. In a very real sense, it is too "dear."

The expense continues for generations. We are never done with it. The sorrow for those who do not return continues unendingly. It leaves deep livid scars in the home life of our country. The financial burden, we Americans can face cheerfully. But these youngsters growing up without fathers to guide them, these young widows who must struggle valiantly onward over the long years, they daily count the cost, and all of us must count the cost with them and resolve mightily that we shall so conduct our affairs in this world that war cannot happen again.

We must face resolutely the war's aftermath. The juvenile delinquency that brings eight young boys to our county jail within a week, is part of that aftermath. We are assured by the FBI that the delinquency of youngsters will increase. Governor Warren has asked state legislators to authorize the expenditure of some 154 millions for repairs, expansion and new construction for our state institutions. This will include much needed money for the care of juvenile delinquents. We are for governor's program, and against the grab the legislature is making for 90 millions to be expended among cities and counties. Our responsibility is first to maintain the state institutions in a modern and adequate condition.

Wars must be paid for. Anyone who reads the history of World War I, can easily see that we are now entering on the payment of large installments for the war ended last fall. Whatever our taxes, and we shall never see taxes as low as those of 1914 again in this county, or for that matter in any other, we must first of all see to it that our returned veterans are given first chance in jobs, houses, and where needed, in medical care. The country owes them that, and much more than it can pay. Next we must take care of the rising tide of criminality that follows in war's wake. We must do that for our own peace at home.

We must set our faces sternly against any more social experiments, for instance, higher pensions for the aged, and health insurance, until we have done the essential things. Paying for the war in all its varied aspects of costs is one of those essentials. Let us beware of anything that will increase the tax burden. Let those who impose taxes beware of making laws which will add to the burden. But let us pay cheerfully our installments on the tremendous debt, so long as the money is expended wisely, constructively, and for the country's permanent well being. We hold that money spent, for instance, to enable our war veterans to get back into peace time pursuits and peace time economy, benefits us all.

Incidentally we were pleased to learn that just about half our congressmen are veterans of the first world war. We believe that our returned veterans should have a very large part in determining what kind of country this shall be. They are the ones who saved it from an ignoble fate.

DICTATORS AT HOME

By Edw. C. Uren

The Labor Relations Act, passed in 1935 under the New Deal is one of the most arbitrary, one-sided pieces of legislation ever to be enacted. Under its provisions the employer is always in the wrong and has no rights whatever.

The act specifically states that "Nothing in the Act shall interfere in any way with the right to strike". The right to strike then—sanctioned by the government and carried out by the unions—means the right to tell you and me, although we are entirely innocent bystanders, whether we can ride or walk; whether we can get bread or starve; whether we can use our phone or have it as an ornament. They can even tell us whether we can work or not.

The unions have the right, under government support, to tie up the steel industry and housing and reconversion. The fat and impudent Petrillo has already told us what music he will permit us to hear—and gets away with it.

So, we are now getting a belly full, so to speak, as well as a belly ache from the rampage of the striking unions. The chief offender, in most instances, is the CIO, the New Deal's sacred cow.

Rockefeller, Gould, Carnegie, if they only knew it, were small fry in what we, in their time, chose to call monopoly. But it is to their credit, if any credit is due them, they at least confined their operations to their own especial lines and didn't attempt to run everything in the country.

Murray, Green and Petrillo stand out today as dictators of the greatest monopoly the country ever has known and are proving at this critical time to be greater menace than either or all of the much villified gentlemen mentioned above.

If you or I as individuals go out and throw a barricade across the street, telling people that they cannot cross it, we would probably be knocked down first and arrested afterward, but the unions have the special privilege of not only stopping you but of beating you up if you do cross it.

Even during the extreme emergency of the war government employment offices cooperated with the union heads in insisting that no man could work on urgently needed defense jobs of any kind unless he first put up $25 or more to join the union. And we call this a free country.

In the meantime Mr. Truman—a pretty good American we believe in the right environment, pops around like grease in a hot skillet and gets nowhere. What action he has taken or advised so far has certainly been ill considered. He has not been helped by a vote conscious and laggard congress. it is true, but they have done him a good turn, if he only realizes it, by not passing what he has advocated.

The president did a pretty good job when he took over, in cueaning away some of the pink froth that surrounded him but too much yeast is still in the brew.

There has been a lot of ballyhoo about what a wonderful job labor has accomplished when it was up to all of us to either fight or be slaves. They did a wonderful job and were well paid for it. Neither the war workers nor those of us who bought war bonds are entitled to a minim of the credit though that is due the men who sweated it out in the foxholes.

We have just finished a war to get rid of dictators. Now we are beset with a crop of the home grown variety which is doing its level best, ostered by the communists attempt destroy the very thing that has made this country the greatest on earth—individual and competitive enterprise.

Strikes should not be permitted where they so flagrantly abuse the rights of the majority of the people who have nothing to do with their origin. If the labor board can set a minimum wage—and they have—they can set a maximum wage, and they can set a trade wage in line with the increased cost of living, which statistics say is 30 per cent at present.

If wages continue to rise as the unions demand, the cost of living will keep pace. It would be like trying to lift yourself by your boot straps to expect otherwise.

AL BATES HEADS MARCH OF DIMES CAMPAIGN

Plans for the 1946 March of Dimes in the fight against infantile paralysis moved forward today with the appointment of Al Bates member of the city council as chairman for the appeal in Nevada City.

Bates was chosen at a meeting held on Tuesday, Jan. 16, at Grass Valley.

The local campaign which opens on January 14 and closes January 31 is part of the nation wide appeal of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis for funds to continue the fight against polio.

The new chairman has announced the following as his aides and chair men of committeess:

As in the past March of Dimes coin collection boxes will be placed at convenient spots throughout the county and coin cards will be distributed. In the light of widespread public knowledge of the National Foundation's tremendous achievements in recent epidemic years Gates said, the local appeal committee is expecting a greater response this year than ever before.

Poliomyelitis, he pointed out is one of the most expensive diseases known to medicine. Hospitalization for a single patient costs more than $2,000 a year. Some cases require continuing care for several years. Not only must many victims of past epidemics receive continuing care but each years outbreaks add new names to the steadily growing lists. Few families can meet the cost of extended polio treatment. Through the annual March of Dimes treatment and care can be assured for all polio victims regardless of age, race, creed or color.

One again we have an opportunity to share in the unrelenting battle against infantile paralysis, the dread crippler that annually attacks America's children.

We can hope that the children of our community will be spared, in the year before us. We cannot be sure. No one can predict where, when or how severely the great crippler will strike. It therefore behooves us to be prepared.

The Nevada County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is arming now against the possibility of an outbreak in the summer head. They must have the necessary funds to help our health officials, physicians and hospitals provide the finest available care and treatment or infantile paralysis patients. When a polio outbreak occurs no one knows how much special equpiment and appliances or how many physical therapists and nurses may be needed.

Our chapter and the National Foundation are pledged to see to it that no victim of infantile paralysis shall go without care and treatment for lack of money regardless of age, color, race or creed.

This is our opportunity to share in one of the greatest humanitarian services of all time. Let us all resolve to give generously.

Let us make this March of Dimes the greatest ever.

A life membership card of solid gold was presented to Col. Robert C. Hunter by the California Hydraulic Mining Association at its January meeting in the Bret Harte Inn.

This is the third such card presented by the association. The first was given to the late representative of this district, Harry L. Englebright and the second was presented to Gen. Warren T. Hannum, retired and now head of the State Division of Natural Resources.

Hannum, a director of the association, made the presentation. Col. Hunter a member of the California Debris Commission, has recently been assigned to engineering work in Southern California and expects to leave soon for his headquarters in Los Angeles.

INDUCEMENTS OFFERED FOR REENLISTMENT

Another stimulant for the army's vast procurement drive was announced today when the war department authorized officers, warrant and flight officers, discharged between May 12 and November 1, 1945 inclusive, to reenlist in the regular army in the top enlisted grade providing they reenlist before February 1, 1946 according to Major Meadows in charge of the recruiting station at Sacramento.

At the same time it was announced that discharged veterans of the Enlisted Reserve Corps may enlist in the regular army at the same rank as they held in the ERC, providing they enlist prior to February 1,

The same date also holds force for men now in the army and men discharged since January 11. Men in this category have only until midnight January 31 to reenlist and retain their rank held at present or at time of discharge. The ratings of all men reenlisting before the deadline automatically beome permanent army rank.

Word that the former officers and members of the ERC could reenlist in the regular army before January 31 and retain their rank under the conditions outlined was received at the Sacramento recruiting station from the adjutant general's office.

Under provisions of the Recruitment Act, veterans and men in the service are still eligible to receive handsome enlistment bonuses, family allowances, benefits under the GI Bill of Rights and fully paid furlough up to 90 days by reenlisting in addition to retaining their rank.

PTA Membership Goal Of 300 Reached

The Nevada City Elementary Parent Teachers Association has announced that their goal of 300 members had been reached and exceeded by 11. Mrs. Hal Draper presiding stated that this enrollment in the association compares favorably with the enrollment of 440 children in the elementary school.

A nominating committee consisting of Mesdames Gordon Vance, John Filler, Marvin Shock and T. S. Scribner was appointed to recommend officers for the coming year.

City Will Be Out Of Debt January 1947

The city of Nevada City sold $70,000 in bonds during the thirty years 1914-1945, California taxpayers association stated making public its study of bonds sold and bonded debt of California cities.

Bonds sold by the city during the 30 years included streets $60,000, parks and recreation $10,000.

The city has $3000 in bonds outstanding as of January 1946 the city clerk reported. Interest and redemption payment by the city for 1945 totalled $3600. Next year at this time Nevada City will be debt free.

Whist Party To Benefit Wolfe Students Horses

A whist party will be given at the Grange Hall on the McCourtney Road for the benefit of horses which students ride to the Wolfe School. The event will take place February 7.

The school district provides no shelter for these mounts and as a result several students stay home in rainy weather rather than leave their horses to stand in the rain. Mothers of school children, sponsoring the whist party hope to raise the daily average attendance of the school by building a rain proof shed where the horses can be kept in wet weather. Some of the students live as far as four miles from the school.

HOME TOWN MEDICAL CARE FOR VETERANS

The sensible and economical home medical service guaranteed to California veterans through agreement between the Veterans' Administration and California Physicans' Service adds to the debt of gratitude the American people owe Veterans' Administrator General Omar N. Bradley.

He is an administrative genius who knows what he wants for the veterans—and gets it. He forced long needed service reforms in veterans' hospitals. He put an end to political logrolling in the building and locating of hospitals. And the problem he has licked with the cooperation of California doctors was a knotty one. This state already has 1,300,000 ex-service men and women. Of World War II veterans, nearly 70 per cent claim service-connected disabilities. The great majority are not ill or incapaciated enough to require separation from their homes and jobs in veterans hospitals, but do need the best in medical service as out-patients, and are entitled to it without delay, red tape or personal cost.

The problem has been solved simply and permanently. After February 1, any veteran determined eligible by the administration for out-patient care at government expense may go to any CPS doctor for treatment. The doctor will be paid on the basis of a fee schedule set up in the contract between CP and the administratin.

There are CPS medical men in every community. It is due to the progressiveness of the California Medical Association, which pioneered the field of voluntary pre-paid medical care by organizing and financing California Physicians Service, that the type and standard of health service sought by General Bradley was in readiness in this state.

Undoubtedly the California program will be a pattern for national emulation. Every veteran whose physical well-being was impaired in the service of this country is certainly entitled to the finest of medical care. And California is indeed fortunate that this service can be provided on a home town basis, without government regimentation of either the veteran or the medical profession.—Contribted.

LET'S GO TO WORK

Never have men in position of power fought more destructively against the welfare of their own followers than the labor leaders master minding major strikes in America today.

History discloses the unalterable economic truth that wages are high and jobs plentiful when the national rate of production is high—as witness the pre-crash era of the 1920s. History also discloses the corollary that wages are low and jobs scarce when the national rate of production is low—as witness the depression era of the 30s.

A recent survey shows that 4 1-2 million American homes require new vacuum cleaners, nearly 6 million need electric refrigerators, nearly 6 million want washing machines, 8 million wait for cooking ranges—not to mention automobiles, new homes, major repairs to old homes, eac.

Consumption begets prouction. Yet right now, with all America eager to buy all manner of consumer goods, labor leaders are resorting to unwarranted work stoppages which halt production—a direct and deadly boomerang! Unless American industry is permitted to swing into full scale production, inflation will result from scarcities—despite all the artificial makeshift controls which alredy show signs of cracking under the unnatural strain. And inflation hits hardest and first the wage earner.

It is hard to imagine an act more shortsighted than the insistence of labor leaders that industry boost wages to the stratosphere before the goods are even maufactured, before profits, of which wages are a part, are even realized—before business knows when and to what extent government will give the "go ahead" sign.

Wages, like profits, come from the single source—production! Let's go back to work in America.—Contributed.

WELL DONE, NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

For the first time in any War or Victory Loan drive, every county in California north of the Tehachapi went over the top in every quota of the recently concluded bond campaign.

Northern California, moreover, surpassed its quota for sales to individuals and its total quota by the biggest margins on record 105 per cent and 152 per cent respectively.

These gratifying results, announced by W. W. Crocker, San Francisco banker and chairman of the treasury department's war finance committee for Northern California, reflect not only the patriotism of citizens of the Northern California and central districts of the state, but also their thrift and acumen. There had been predictions that would be the hardest bond drive to put over, because of the ending of the war. Northern California showed them differently. — Contributed.

WASHINGTON NOTES

By Congressman Clair Engle

WASHINGTON. D. C. — January 10—Housing Order Being Drafted: The OCPA is drafting the new order which will channel building materials into the lower cost housing which is so vitally needed for returning veterans and their families. Most of the personnel in the present civilian production administration is made up of administrators transferred over from the old war production board. Consequently they are pretty familiar with orders of this type and have had a good deal of experience which should enable them to draft an order not causing business too much red tape and trouble. One thing they learned in the WPB was to call in representatives of the industry when an order is being written. That has been done in this instance. The lumber industry is represented back here by their lumber advisory committee. There are five altogether from the Pacific Coast states. The two from our area are Pat Ivory of Klamath Falls and Perry Burke of Sacramento. Both of these men know their business and will do a good job protecting the industry. I met with them last night together with some of the men from civilian production administration who are writing the order. The industry representatives seem to be pretty well satisfied with the job which is being done and think that when an order comes out it will be one the lumber industry can get along with.

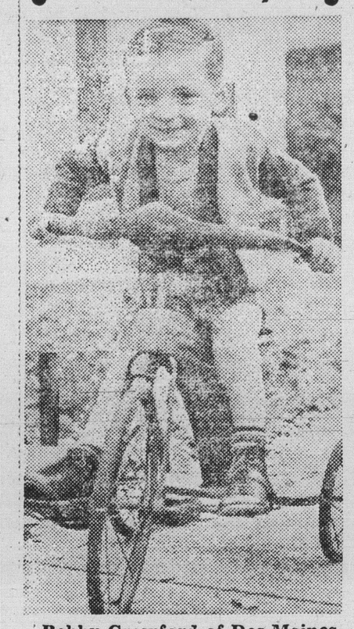

Farmer's Shook—One thing I have been concerned about in connection with the order and which I mentioned at the meeting is that the order be not written in such a way as to prevent box shook and containers being available for our agricultural production. I think the agricultural people who use box shook exclusively in marketing their crops should start looking around and protecting themselves in the matter of shook for their containers. The supply is going to be short and somebody is apt to be left holding the sack. I emphasized at the meeting that some allocation should be made which will protect California farmers. The lumber advisory committee wanted to exempt all box shook from the order entirely but the CPA is afraid that would impair the production of some of the items needed for home construction. The allocation will probably be handled on a percentage basis but in any event the farmers interested in box shook should get busy and protect their source of supply.

Lumber Price — The National Wooden Box Association and the National Lumber Manufacturers Association and various lumbering concerns in California have contacted me with reference to the present price of lumber. They feel that in increase in price is necessary in order to get the needed production especially in view of wage increases which have been granted and in some cases which are still being demanded. The lumber advisory committee here in Washington has not been called into meet with the OPA which controls the matter of price. The subject of a price will be taken up in the meetings with the civilian production administration and then that agency may take a recommendation to the OPA. However I am urging a meeting of the representatives of the industry while they are here with the OPA in order to get started on settling the question of adequate price. I think this is a much more important matter than the details or mechanics of the order which will channel the lumber and which in the course of time can be worked out anyway.

President's Speech—The president in his recent speech asked the people to write to their representatives in congress. I have received approximately twenty five or thirty letters. This is a good deal less than some of the other congressional offices representing metropolitan areas have received. For instance, Congressman Tolan representing a portion of the bay area informs me that he has received something like 500 letters. The letters which I have received favor the action recommended by the president about four to one. Of course this may not be a true reflection of public sentiment on the subject as the president did not ask the people who disagreed with him to write to their representatives. By implication at least, he asked for the support of those who did. Most of the letters I received are not specific but simply request that congress take action and take action quickly to terminate the present labor management difficulties and get the production which is so necessary to prevent post war inflation. I agree that this should be done.

Surplus Airports—Bob Schmidt, superintendent of airports for the Civil Aeronautics Administration at Santa Monica is here in Washington in regard to the disposal of surplus airports. This involves the problem of taking over the airports no longer used by the military authorities such as the airports at Chico, Anderson, Montague, Alturas, Bishop and others. In addition of course the civil administration is moving into the biggest airport and aviation program in its history. involving the construction of many small airports throughout the United States. I was particularly gratified to note that the governor has included the matter of airports for consideration in the special session of the legislature now being held at Sacramento. This is a matter of great importance to the rural counties of California because generally speaking those counties are not in a position to match the funds which will be made available under the national airport program and unless some assistance is made available from the state such as was done in the federal highway program, it will be impossible for our small mountain counties to participate in the national airport program. If such occurs all of California will suffer because of the failure to establish an integrated airport system for the entire state. I am in hopes that the legislature will set up an agency to handle this matter at state level and provide funds for the small mountain counties to participate in the national airport program.

Price Of Cheddar Cheese To Rise February 1

After January 31, cheddar cheese will probably retail about 5 cents higher per pound than it does at present. The reason is the U. S. department of agriculture is terminating the present subsidy of 3 3-4 cents a pound on this type of cheese. The action is in accordance with the schedule for subsidy terminations announced last November by Judge John C. Collett.

Because the subsidy payment is to end the OPA is authorized by the stabilization director to make corresponding increase in the ceiling price on cheddar cheese. The subsidy program which will continue through January and the revised ceiling regulations will contain provisions to prevent profits on inventories of the cheese which might otherwise accrue as a result of the price increase Feb. first.

Chinese Coal Miners Work For Wages In Flour

American consumers who sometimes find it hard to imagine the meaning of hunger will be interested in learning why coal production in North China has nearly doubled during the past month. Officials say the sudden spurt in coal production is directly due to the arrival of flour for distribution by UNRRA. Promise of payment in the much needed white flour attracted many of the workers back to the mines. Workers also receive a small cash payment in local currency and are furnished housing facilities. These mines supply coal for many of China's commercial and industrial centers. Officials have requested additional flour shipments to maintain production schedules.

The play was directed by the celebrated dramatist Miss Hart author of Winged Victory, Lady in the Dark, and The Man Who Came to Dinner.
